People around the world celebrate birthdays. How do you celebrate birthdays in your country?

In my country, we eat special bread on our birthdays. Every year my mum makes lots of it for me and my friends on my birthday. There are little pieces of colourful sugar on it. We call it “hundreds and thousands”.

David, Australia

Birthdays are a lot of fun! Here in Jamaica, we like to surprise (使惊喜) people on their birthdays. Guess what we do? We throw flour (抛面粉) at them. It was my best friend Bruce's birthday yesterday. He was white all over!

Sam, Jamaica

My grandmother turned 100 last April. She was very excited because she received a special letter from the Queen (女王). The Queen sent letters to people on their 100-year-old birthdays before. This tradition made people very happy.

Lucy, the UK

In my country, many of us celebrate birthdays with noodles. They mean good luck and a long life. Next week on my birthday, I'm going to make “long-life noodles” at home for all my family. We are going to eat them together and have a great evening!
