When I lived in Spain, some Spanish friends of mine decided to visit England by car.

Before they left, they asked me for advice about how to find a good place to live. I suggested that they should stay at "bed and breakfast" houses, (because this kind of places can give a foreign visitor a good chance to speak English with the family) My friends listened to my advice, but they came back with some funny stories.

"We didn't stay at 'bed and breakfast' houses," they said, "because we found that most families were away on holiday." I thought this was strange. Finally I understood what had happened. My friends spoke little English, and they thought "VACANCIES" meant "holidays", because the Spanish word for "holidays" is "vacations". So they did not go to house where the sign outside said "VACANCIES", which in English means there are free rooms. Then my friends went to house where the sign said "NO VACANCIES", because they thought this meant the people who owned the house were not away on holiday. But they found that these houses were all full. Actually, this means "no free rooms". As a result, they stayed at hotels!

We laughed about this and about mistakes my friends made in reading other signs. In Spanish, the word "DIVERSION" means fun. In English, it means that workmen are repairing the road, and that you must take a different road. When my friends saw the word "DIVERSION" on a road sign, they thought they were going to have fun.

Instead, the road ended in a large hole.

English people have problems too when they learn foreign languages. Once in Paris when the waiter was going to offer me some more coffee, I said "Thank you" in French. I meant that I would like some more. However, to my surprise, the coffee pot was taken away! Later I found out that "Thank you" in French means "No, thank you."

- (B) 56. My Spanish friends wanted advice about _____.
 A. learning English B. finding places to stay in England
 C. driving their car on English roads D. going to England by car
- (A) 57. I suggested that they stay at "bed and breakfast" houses because _____.
 A. they would be able to practice their English
 B. it would be much cheaper than staying in hotels
 C. it would be convenient for them to have dinner
 D. there would be no problem about finding accommodation (住宿) there
- (A) 58. "NO VACANCIES" in English means _____.
 A. no free rooms B. free rooms C. not away on holiday D. holidays
- (D) 59. If you see a road sign that says "Diversion" in England, you will _____.
 A. fall into a hole
 B. have a lot of fun and enjoy yourself
 C. find that the road is blocked by crowds of people
 D. have to take a different road
- (B) 60. I was surprised when the coffee pot was taken away because I _____.
 A. hadn't finished drinking my coffee
 B. was expecting another cup of coffee
 C. meant that I didn't want any more
 D. was never misunderstood
